WIRED FOR GREATNESS:

A Collaborative Approach to Head and Heart Learning

The growing field of social and emotional learning (SEL) and its relationship to academic success and well-being are explored in this collaborative session. Issues in implementing and assessing SEL Solutions are analyzed, including the roles of school and district leadership, teachers, families, and communities. Participants will understand how incorporating current events and SEL themes is essential for success in school and life, leading to a growth mindset. Increasing intentionality by appreciating the whole child and identifying tools available for applying this knowledge in classrooms serves to connect educational settings and meet the needs of students we serve. All participants will be provided with professional learning tools for actionable success.

Byron V. Garrett

is one of the most compelling voices of our times. He is Chairman of the National Family Engagement Alliance, former CEO of the National PTA, and serves as an advisor to Fortune 500 companies, organizations, and individuals. Byron also directs the innovative schools program for Microsoft and provides guidance to Scholastic Education. A leading education advocate, Byron served as a key strategist for NBC News' Education Nation and produced the 1st Annual Building a Grad National Summit for the America's Promise Alliance. He is also a former K-8 principal and served as a co-convenor of the Helping America's Youth Initiative for the White House. He is the author of The ABCs of Life (Scholastic, 2013).
